He went to public and said, sin." "As much as I am a man, as much much as I cannot simply become something else, as woman." Of course, that's what he did. He sta chastity, virginity, and celibacy. He said, "A man w has no woman is not a man." If you ask m Wayne of church history, then I will not name sor married, but Saint Benedict. When God permitted Saint have visible satanic apparitions that looked like beautiful threw himself (laughs) in a thorn bush to get rid temptation. That's what I call a man. A man gives into his own lusts and desires, that's not sissy. And of course, in the logical context of Luth about his own vices, he, quote unquote, "had to met, of course, he met a few ladies. He had qu them ladies for the… Well, anyway, or women. He whatever, specimen of the female human species, and recorded quite a few adventures with them.
